"Man is composed here of a two-fold part:
The first of nature, and the next of art."

Speaking of concordats, we note that the Antislavery League also accepts Cannon law. Imperium in Imperio!

Fannie Brice picks a Rose in the garden of love, and let us hope she will find no more thorns.

With Mr. Morgan and Mr. Young on the job there's more knowledge about money in Paris now than there is money to know about.

Chairman Gibson goes snooping for the Washington underworld, and Joe Freeman, as George Creel would say, goes slumming.

The truth of the matter is that Washington has always had an underworld, from the time Murder Bay merged its unsavory reputation into that of the Division, and the "red light" district that extended from Fifteenth street east was as international notorious as New York's Tenderloin, the only difference being that the reformers have driven the half-world underground and in many respects increased the difficulties of the police. Mr. Gibson's naivete is refreshing—first thing you know he'll be wanting a Congressional investigation to ascertain who his Billy Patterson. Wait until Tom Blanton learns about that sensational case!

That new-fangled tube for escaping from submarines has been perfected to the point where it could almost enable the $24,000,000 prohibition appropriation to get out of conference.

Eamon de Valera talks himself into a month in quod. As Charlie Thompson would say it—
It's the most distressed country of which I've ever heard!
You go to jail for speaking in the Gaelic dialect.

The assassin of Obregon draws the scene of his death, and today he will draw the fire of a squad of soldiers. Mexico has reached the point where we were on June 30, 1922, when we hanged the crazy Calles.

Clothing manufacturers protest against the proposed high wool schedule in the new tariff law. What's one man's meat is another man's poison.

Wife of a member of the House of Commons is elected to Parliament, and the only insect in her jar of cold cream is that her husband belongs to the same party she does.

Checks amounting to $12,000 pour into the Community Chest. As the old song used to put it,
"Every little bit, added to what you've got,
Makes just a little bit more."

Experts up at the Capitol are determined to find out what caused the big Wall Street flop. Hope nobody got hurt, boys.

Senator Smith is coming back from Miami with enough dynamite in his grip to break the log jam in Congress, sink the $24,000,000 prohibition raid on the Treasury and set the deficiency bill free.

Some folks seem to forget that Mr. Hoover has eight years in which to investigate the noble experiment.

Representative Albert Johnson, an ardent dry, lays the barbarous regime in semi-civilized Michigan, under which a woman and a boy are serving a life sentence for selling a pint of gin. Intelligent people know that the way to destroy a law is to make it repugnant to the basic instincts of mankind, but this doesn't prevent the ignorant fanatic from riding to his inevitable fall. After all, Puritanism was followed by the Restoration.

In standing by their decision in the Burlingame case the Commissioners give reassuring evidence that the District government is still at Fourteenth and E streets, and not in a House Office Building lobby. If Mr. Gibson wants to run this city let him get himself appointed Mayor.

We don't know just how Uncle Sam is going to get the worst of it at the reparations conference, as the details haven't been worked out yet.

What we can't see is why they don't get at the truth about who painted La Belle Ferroniere by leaving a subpoena for this here fellow de Vinci.

The theory that Billy Patterson was hit in Baltimore is challenged—it now appearing that he was actually hit at Seventh and the Avenue and carried to Baltimore in a boot-lugger's limousine. We expect Mr. Blanton to turn up any day with an eyewitness of the event.

SEVEN NATIONS SEEK TO SOLVE DEBT PROBLEM

Financial Experts Open Reparations Parley in Paris Today.

GERMANY EXPECTED TO RESIST DEMANDS

Allies to Ask at Least $500,000,000 Annually; Americans Arrive.

Paris, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—An unprecedented conference in a quiet room at the Banque de France tomorrow will open what probably is the last act in the great drama of the World War.

Financial experts of seven nations, most of whom arrived here today, will meet to approach the last problem of the four-year military conflict which has disturbed international political and economic relations during the last ten years.

The United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Japan and Germany are represented by two delegates each at the conference which will attempt to establish a definite total of war reparations Germany must pay, the former allied nations and the method of payments.

The allies are prepared to state their demands and to stand firmly, by the Versailles treaty agreement that Germany must pay the costs of the war, including debts which the allies owe each other and the United States.

Allies to Demand $550,000,000. It was learned on good authority tonight that the British and French delegates hope to succeed in fixing the definite annual reparations payments by Germany at least as high as $550,000,000. Under the present Dawes plan schedule Germany pays approximately $250,000,000 per year for an indefinite number of years.

The forthcoming revision will set a definite number of years in which reparations must be paid. Germany is just as firmly prepared to fight to the limit for reduction of the vast amounts asked with every weapon—some of them formidable—at her command.

While the German people will feel most keenly the outcome of these conferences, the problem extends to every country involved and will be of great importance to the United States not only because of the demands that Germany pay for allied war debts to the United States but because of the expectations that American interests will take a prominent role in financing any settlement reached.

American Delegates Arrive. Owen D. Young, who is the general chairman of the committee, and J. Pierpont Morgan, the two unofficial American delegates, and their alternates and staffs, arrived this morning on the Aquitania at Cherbourg. Neither would talk. The American delegation has established headquarters at the Ritz.

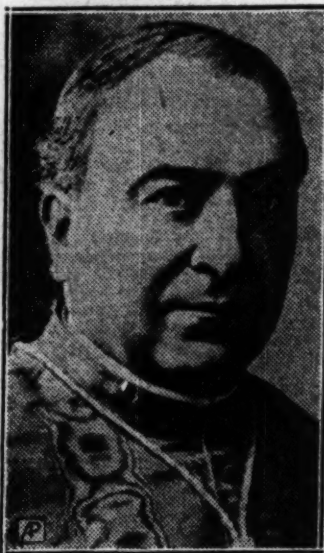

The unprecedented situation confronting the forthcoming sessions of financial experts is indicated by the fact that their decision will affect the taxes of virtually all of the nations involved for a period extending through several decades. Germany especially will feel this in tax payments.

As final conferences were held tonight in preparation for the preliminary meeting tomorrow, the international line-up began to take shape, with France's official position, as outlined by the United Press in an authorized presentation yesterday, most definite.

France, which will get the most of the German reparations payments because of the great war damage suffered, will demand a total of about $8,000,000,000 for her share.

This covers payment of France's debts to the United States and Great Britain. The conference will be held in the presence of the United States delegation, which will be headed by Mr. Young.

STOCKS DROP ANEW AS MONEY TIGHTENS

Fear of Congress Inquiry Into Speculation Aids Selling Movement.

NEW LOW LEVELS ARE SET

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Prices on the New York Stock Exchange continued on the down grade today as the selling movement, set in motion yesterday by adverse credit developments, received added impetus from the marking up of call money rates from 6 to 9 per cent. Extreme declines in the active issues ranged from $2 to $10 a share, but many of the losses were out in half by a brisk covering movement just before the close.

Trading was only moderate in volume, the day's sales aggregating only 4,553,250 shares, but the large number of small transactions delayed the printing of the final sale until 37 minutes after the market closed. With tomorrow a stock exchange holiday, many of today's transactions represented the usual week-end evening up of accounts by professional traders.

Despite the fact that many "bulls" were nursing grievances against the Federal Reserve Board for its rather sharp warning against the excessive use of speculative credit, the introduction of resolutions in both branches of Congress calling for an inquiry into the board's action brought fresh selling on the theory that a congressional airing of the brokers' loan question would only make for further unsettling.

Publication of Washington dispatches indicating that legislative action on the loan question was extremely unlikely at this session of Congress was believed to be a factor in the late rally. The rise in call money followed the calling of about $40,000,000 in loans, which was attributed in some quarters to the semi-weekly strengthening by New York banks of their reserve position, and in others to the withdrawal of funds by interior banks as a result of the Federal Reserve Board's warning.

Loans by out-of-town banks made up a large part of the total increase of $110,000,000 in brokers' borrowings in the week ended Wednesday.

Many of the market favorites, such as U. S. Steel common, General Motors, Montgomery-Ward, American Telephone, and New York Central broke through the low levels established in yesterday's sharp decline.

Several others, such as Chrysler, Goodrich, Fox Film and Lehigh Valley, sank to new low levels for the year.

Allied Chemical, Baldwin Locomotive, Case Threshing, Old Elevator, Safeway Stores and International Silver showed net declines of $7 to $10 a share, but in some cases the turnover was only a few hundred shares. Net declines of $5 a share or more were recorded by more than a score of others, including A. M. Egan, Columbia Carbon, Commercial Solvents, Electric Auto Lite, Park & Tilford, Union Carbide and Wright Aeronautical.

CHURCH JUDGES MARRIAGE TIES IN ROMAN PACT

Ecclesiastics Are Given Supreme Jurisdiction Over Questions.

SIGNING OF CONCORDAT PUT OFF TO MONDAY

Pope, It Is Revealed, Will Receive Enlarged Lands Near Lake Nemi Palace.

Rome, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Marriage laws are among the matters of great public interest in the treaty of conciliation between the Vatican and Italy, signature of which was put over today from Sunday to Monday morning. All questions concerning the matrimonial tie are established by the concordat as the exclusive competence of the ecclesiastical authorities.

Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, and Premier Mussolini, for their principals, on Monday will affix their signatures to the document which ends a 60-year break in relations between the Quirinal and the Vatican. Postponement of the ceremony was ordered for fear that a dangerously large concourse of people would result if the ceremony was carried out in conjunction with the signing of a "Te Deum" for the anniversary of the Pope's coronation.

Enlarged Lands for Pope. Among the additional disclosures of the scope of the treaty made today was that the enlarged domains of Castel Gandolfo have been added to the territories of the Pope.

The original draft of the marriage clauses in the concordat said that legal separation would be "tolerated." Later the Pope agreed to modify this to "consent," which means "allowed." Such separation, however, can be granted only by state courts.

A learned authority on canon law tonight said that divorce, as understood in the modern law of France, England or the United States, does not exist either in canon law or in the Italian civil code. Both laws, however, admit of complete dissolution of the marriage bond so that the man or woman is free to contract a fresh marriage, in grave specified causes (separatio quoad vinculum), or simply relief of one of the parties from the obligation of living with the other (separatio quoad torum et mensam).

Like Legal Separation. This latter corresponds to legal separation and may be granted in the case of mutual consent of the applicants if one party exposes the other to grave danger of body or soul or commits adultery. In all other cases the marriage bond is indissoluble and married persons are bound to live together as husband and wife. Canon law uses the word divorce not in its modern sense but as meaning a dissolution of the marriage bond or separation as in the above-mentioned cases.

The difference between modern laws allowing divorce and canon law as the former consider marriage as a civil contract concluded by individuals and dissolve it by any other contract, while the latter proclaims that marriage is a sacrament that no man power can dissolve.

The complete sovereignty and independence of the Pope are the two most important points established in the treaty of conciliation which will bring to solution the long-pending Roman question.

Full Sovereignty Admitted. The treaty begins by stating that Pope Pius XI and King Victor Emmanuel, wishing to put an end to the abnormal condition of the Holy See in Rome have appointed their respective plenipotentiaries—for the pontiff, Cardinal Gasparri, and for the king, Premier Mussolini, acting as minister of foreign affairs.

The treaty states that these plenipotentiaries have agreed on the dispositions which the two high contracting parties pledge themselves to observe. Then the articles of the treaty follow, containing the conditions already known, the most important being the admission of the complete sovereignty and independence of the pontiff.

There is only one novelty of territorial character regarding the Pope's domain, namely, at Castel Gandolfo, a small village 12 miles from Rome on

BURLINGAME IS HELD IN POST BY OFFICIALS; GIBSON FINDS UNDERWORLD IS "ORGANIZED"

Chairman Gets His Basis for Belief at Theater Benefit Quiz.

PROMOTER AND POLICE GRILLED ON STAND

Committee Calls Others for Additional Meeting of Group Today.

LETTERMAN IS AMONG RAIDERS TO APPEAR

Lieut. Kelly Describes What He Saw at Gayety; Was Little Drinking, He Says.

Having satisfied itself yesterday that Washington has a "well-organized underworld," the Gibson subcommittee of the House District committee will meet again this morning and inquire into two matters concerning the police force.

The witnesses called for today will be questioned about Frank McCormick, an alleged gambler, and about charges of cruel and hard-boiled tactics on the part of the police.

Yesterday's hearing was devoted entirely to the recent gambler's benefit performance at the Gayety Theater, and after it was over Chairman Ernest W. Gibson said that he and his colleagues had heard enough to convince them that the gambling and bootlegging rackets are thoroughly organized here.

Letterman Witness Today. Sgt. O. L. Letterman, chief of the First Precinct liquor squad, will appear this morning, provided he is not tied up by a case in court. He will be asked what he meant recently when he said that he could have arrested Frank McCormick if "there hadn't been something crooked somewhere."

Policeman Laurits Christensen, of the Eleventh Precinct, also has been called. He will be asked if McCormick struck him at detective headquarters one day and then walked out unmolested. If he admits that it happened, he will be asked why he permitted McCormick to get away.

The principal witness in the second phase of today's hearing will be William F. Carpenter, 491 H street southwest, who claims that policemen recently beat him and his two sons with nightsticks, and blackened the eyes of his wife and daughter.

Other Witnesses Called. Others expected to testify are Alfonso Ward, colored, who claims policemen beat him without justification, and Richard Blunt, colored messenger in the Senate, who claims policemen knocked his door in during an unjustified liquor raid.

Following yesterday's hearing, Chairman Gibson said that, notwithstanding statements to the contrary, he had information that the Gayety benefit performance was designed to raise money for a defense fund for the four gamblers who went to jail rather than "equal."

Headquarters Detective John Fowler told the subcommittee that in the crowd that attended the benefit he recognized at least 30 persons who had been convicted of different crimes and 200 who had been arrested.

Joe Freeman, wrestling and boxing impresario, was the principal witness at the hearing. It was he who promoted the so-called benefit performance, but so far as his testimony yesterday was concerned, it was more enlightening than it was enlightening.

"He told some of the truth," Chairman Gibson said, sarcastically, after the hearing.

Names Are Mentioned. Gibson cited the names of a half dozen or more prominent figures in the local sporting world, and asked Freeman if they were gamblers. The promoter answered naively that he didn't know what the men did for a living.

Among the names that Gibson mentioned were Eddie Killen, Frank McCormick, Sam Beard, Tom Moore, "Dutch" Irwin, "Mickey" McDonald and "Nubby" Nichols. The first three have previously been described to the

Mrs. Fokker Kills Self By Plunging 15 Floors

Wife of World-Famous Plane Builder Had Been in Hospital.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Viola Fokker, wife of Anthony H. G. Fokker, airplane manufacturer and designer, committed suicide tonight by jumping 15 stories from the bedroom window of their Riverside Drive apartment. She was 29 years old.

Mrs. Fokker suffered a nervous disorder two months ago and for a time was in a Boston hospital. She was removed a few days ago to the Presbyterian Hospital here and had been discharged from there only this afternoon.

Fokker told police he returned home tonight after a day of flying and, being tired and sleepy, decided to take a nap before dinner. His wife, he said, was already resting. She was in a highly nervous condition, he told police and complained: "You are always asleep. Why don't you talk to me once in a while and pay some attention to me?"

He attempted to quiet her, he said, and then fell asleep. Mrs. Fokker called the maid and ordered Mrs. Fokker's dinner and a glass of water for herself. When the maid returned with the water Mrs. Fokker was gone. The maid awakened Fokker, who noticed the window was open and looking out he saw his wife's body lying in the driveway 15 stories below.

Police said that a protecting ventrator had been removed from the window and listed the case as a "suicide."

MRS. ANTHONY H. G. FOKKER.

Fokker collapsed and is under the care of a physician.

Mrs. Fokker, a native of Canada, was an expert flier and frequently piloted her husband's planes. They were married two years ago.

Mrs. Fokker is a native of Holland and came to this country in 1920. He designed many of the fighting planes used by the Germans in the World War and has been successful as a manufacturer and designer since coming to this country.

It was one of his planes that was used by Commander Richard E. Byrd on his flight to the North Pole and on the transatlantic flight.

CLOSED SOFT-DRINK BARS ARE REOPENED

Two Proprietors Enter Into Endurance Test With Capt. Cornwall.

FEW CUSTOMERS VISIBLE

With the reopening yesterday morning of two soft-drink bars that closed down Thursday night under the surveillance of the police of the Fourth Precinct, a grim-lipped struggle of endurance has developed between the bartenders and Capt. Fred Cornwall.

This was made evident last night when Morris Horan, proprietor of the soft-drink saloon at 411 Four-and-a-half street southwest, warned the police that he "had plenty of lights that are going to burn a long, long time."

Ferry Leroy Cramer, who runs the bar at 335 Four-and-a-half street southwest, was more guarded, even when he was arrested yesterday afternoon for "failing to have an occupancy permit" for his business.

Cramer was arrested by L. E. Batchelor, policeman of the Fourth Precinct, whom Capt. Cornwall detailed to guard the premises. Cramer is charged with operating his store on a permit issued to a Tom Wright, who has been dead for five years.

Cramer was said by police to have been a bartender for Wright and upon Wright's death took over the business, but failed to renew the occupancy permit. He put up $100 collateral and

KEYES FOUND GUILTY ON BRIBERY CHARGE

Two Codefendants, With the Former Prosecutor, Also Are Convicted.

SEQUEL OF OIL SCANDAL

Los Angeles, Feb. 8 (United Press).—Former District Attorney Aaa Keyes and two codefendants late tonight were found guilty by a jury on three counts of bribery conspiracy in connection with the Julian Petroleum Corporation collapse trials.

The verdict was returned at 10:05 p. m. after 3 hours and 55 minutes of deliberation.

Keyes and the other two men were in the courtroom, awaiting the verdict when the jury returned and there was no delay. They will be sentenced Monday morning.

Keyes, the poker-faced, cracked visibly as he heard the foreman of the jury speak the words which told the millions of people in Los Angeles County that as their district attorney he had been corrupted and had betrayed them for $155,000 in cash and valuable gifts.

Verdicts against each of the three men—Keyes, Ed Rosenberg, accused of paying him $125,000 to seek his dismissal as a Julian defendant, and Ben Getzoff, their tailor-money passer, were read separately.

Keyes was unmoved for a moment as the verdict was read. Then he said: "I am glad to hear the verdict and I am glad to hear the jury speak the words which told the millions of people in Los Angeles County that as their district attorney he had been corrupted and had betrayed them for $155,000 in cash and valuable gifts."

Judge Butler ruled that the defendants be taken to the county jail and held until sentence is passed.

Pastor, Irked by "Lecture," Bible Seller Is Arrested

Vender Reported to Have Chided Rev. J. G. Queally on Cigarette Smoking When Soliciting Sale; Held for Having No Permit.

When a missionary worker tried to sell a minister a Bible here yesterday the missionary worker was arrested on a charge of soliciting without a permit.

The participants in the affair were Herbert Knight, 1809 Hamlin street northeast, who described himself as a personal evangelist, and the Rev. John J. Queally, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration.

Knight said he approached the minister at his residence at 1419 Gallatin street northwest, and asked him if he could not use some copies of the New Testament.

Mr. Queally replied, Knight said, that he did not have money for such purposes, whereupon Knight, according to his own statement, told the minister he might have money to buy Bibles if he did not spend it for cigarettes, such as he was smoking.

After a few more exchanges Knight said he left the Queally house and went to a drug store for luncheon.

As he was going in the drug store, Knight said he saw Queally coming out. As Knight himself came out, he said he was approached by a police officer who asked him if he had a permit to sell Bibles. Knight answered he did not know he had to have one.

Knight posted $5 collateral at the Thirteenth Precinct, where he was taken by Officer J. Henry, but because he is a Seventh Day Adventist, he will not have to go to court until Monday.

To all of this there was "absolutely nothing," Mr. Queally declared last night. When asked if the Bible salesman had lectured him about smoking, Mr. Queally said "nothing to it."

City Heads Refuse to Act Unless Mrs. Blalock Quits Hiding.

COMMITTEE LETTER BRINGS FINISH FIGHT.

Present Law Covers Case, Bride and Hart Hold, at Conference.

ONE MORE SESSION IS CALLED FOR TODAY

District Men Sure Blanton Could Produce Palmist if He So Desires.

The District Commissioners will stand on their decision in the Burlingame affair.

That was the inescapable conclusion to be drawn from comment of the Commissioners today at the conclusion of a meeting, which lasted several hours yesterday, despite the fact that they were unanimous in refusing to discuss the matter for publication.

There will be another meeting of the Commissioners today at the conclusion of the demand of the Gibson subcommittee that Burlingame be suspended, and the final course of the Commissioners will be mapped out at that meeting. Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, president of the Board of Commissioners, said.

Pending the final agreement upon their course by the Commissioners at their meeting today, Dougherty said, there would be no announcement made.

Stand on Present Law. The letter from the Gibson subcommittee, it was said, did not discuss any new evidence, and could not be construed as changing the law on which the position of the Commissioners, in refusing to suspend Burlingame, was based. It was said.

Corporation Counsel William W. Budge and his principal assistant, Ringgold Hart, were called into their meeting by the Commissioners, and there was considerable discussion of what the laws surrounding the case provided. Neither Budge nor Hart, however, would consent to discuss the case after the meeting.

Despite their reticence the Commissioners, seemingly, are prepared to fight to a finish with the Gibson committee, however much to their dislike such a fight may be. They do not want to fight with the committee. The Commissioners want everything to go smoothly and politely along. If they never had a fight they would be pleased.

This sentiment, however, does not help them much in the present situation. They have told the Gibson committee that they did not intend to suspend Capt. Burlingame at this time in view of the fact that his accuser, Mrs. Blalock, will not appear.

Demand by Committee. The committee, in return, told the Commissioners that they should suspend Burlingame until letters he is said to have written Mrs. Blalock are explained.

There is nothing new in the additional "evidence" submitted by the Gibson committee in their letter, it was said by the Commissioners. So far as the Commissioners are concerned, the same will remain the same until and unless Mrs. Blalock appears to testify against Burlingame.

Immediately Mrs. Blalock discloses her whereabouts and consents to come before a proper tribunal, to testify against Burlingame the situation will be changed materially.

Frankly, District officials do not believe Representative Blanton when he says that he does not know where Mrs. Blalock is. Assuming that the Texas is technically truthful they feel certain that he could communicate with her and persuade her to put in an appearance and that if he were acting in good faith he would do so forthwith.

Committee Unfair, Belief.

The Commissioners ordinarily would walk around seventeen blocks to avoid a fight, not only with a committee but with an individual Congressman, but in this instance they fear that the committee has been unfair and has attempted to put them in a false position.

Referring to the committee declaration that many privates have been cited before the Police Trial Board on the basis of no more evidence than has been submitted against Burlington, officials declare that in every case in which an officer has been cited before the trial board his accusers have been there too, and have been called on to substantiate their charges.

Police officials declare that photographs of letters written on a typewriter, and of an affidavit, or checks and receipts, are not legal evidence. They say, too, on the basis of legal advice, that affidavits are not admissible as evidence when the person making the affidavit may appear.

Representative Blanton, who has been more than any one else, responsible for pushing the Blacklock charges against Burlington, yesterday resumed his cloak of disinterestedness.

Mackay Represents Palms.

Chandler Mackay will represent Mrs. Blacklock when and if she appears. It was disclosed, although it was not made known how Mr. Mackay or Mr. Blanton arranged for that representation. Mr. Blanton insisted he did not know the whereabouts of Mrs. Blacklock. Mackay did not know where his client was yesterday either, he said.

Meanwhile the much-talked-of proceedings which were to have been pushed with renewed vigor by Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins produced nothing. Collins did not risk going his rumored threat to subpoena Blanton and force him to state under oath what he knew about the whereabouts of Mrs. Blacklock.

Department of Justice agents have been assigned to ascertain the whereabouts of the disappearing palmer. It was learned, but so far they have discovered nothing more than have the detectives who have been assigned to the same task by the District police.

"Strange as it may seem, police officials will not even admit that they are seeking to learn the whereabouts of Mrs. Blacklock, the accused of a high police official. The police are afraid that they will be accused of trying to persecute Mrs. Blacklock."

"The Department of Justice agents are understood to be engaged in the search for various points on Mrs. Blacklock's charges. For example, they are said to have ascertained that Burlington in person carried some of the checks involved."

Tests of Signatures.

They have called in handwriting experts too, and have received a substantiation of the belief that the signatures on various papers purported to be Burlington's signatures really are his.

Collins apparently was contacted with Blanton yesterday and said that he was satisfied that Blanton did not know where the palmer is. He also said that he was satisfied that Mrs. Blacklock would put in an appearance when she was wanted, although the answer to the question as to when she was wanted was left unanswered.

The Burlington affair was reported to have been the subject of a discussion between the President and Commissioner Dougherty at breakfast at the White House yesterday morning, but the President and the Commissioner denied that this was the case. In fact, the President seemed to be somewhat displeased when the question was raised at the meeting of the Chief Executive with the press.

The accuracy of a story published in an afternoon newspaper that there had been an extended discussion about the matter between the President and Commissioner Dougherty, who sat beside the President at the table, was denied.

Manning Is Given Medal By France for Rescue

Cherbourg, France, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Chief Officer Harry Manning, acting commander of the U. S. S. America, and other members of the famous boat crew who rescued the crew of the Italian freighter Florida last month, today were presented with a gold medal commemorating their feat by officials of the Cherbourg Chamber of Commerce.

Capt. George S. Fried, commander of the America, who did not make the present trip, will receive a similar medal on his next trip to the French port in honor of his work as commander of the vessel when the hazardous rescue was made. French port and municipal authorities, as well as American consular officials, were present at today's ceremony.

Yachtsman's Wife Wins Divorce Plea

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Julia Murphy Whitehead was awarded a first verdict today in her divorce suit against C. P. (Conkey) Whitehead, Atlanta, who she charged with habitual intoxication.

The suit was uncontested, Whitehead being reported to the court as in Havana, where he is reportedly in a first-class hotel. He is charged with habitual intoxication, giving her $1,500 a month and the use of the family home. Under Georgia law, another jury must return a similar verdict before the final divorce is entered.

$2,825,000 Realty Trade Completed

Four Apartment Houses Figure in Deal by Wardman Firm.

Four large apartment house properties of an aggregate value of $2,825,000 were involved in a trade announced yesterday by the Wardman Corporation.

By the transaction, the largest in recent months in the District, John Cassidy, Mrs. H. D. Caldwell and members of her family take over from the Wardman concern the 90-year lease on the 11-story story apartment building now under construction at the southwest corner of Connecticut avenue and L street northwest.

The Wardman Corporation assumes in exchange the titles to the 7-story apartment house at 2701 Connecticut avenue, the Calverton Apartments, Columbia and Quarry roads; the 6-story apartment house at 2829 Connecticut avenue and a residence at 1749 Columbia road.

Freighter, Once Asking Help, Is Out of Danger

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The freighter Alway reported late today was proceeding to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, under her own power and that the three vessels that had been asked to go to her assistance had been notified that she no longer needed aid. Early today the Alway radioed for help while she was being battered by heavy seas. She reported her engines were disabled in the storm.

Dutch Harbor is about 300 miles northwest of the Alway's present position.

INQUIRY INTO GAMBLERS' BENEFIT IS BEGUN

Investigation of the gamblers' benefit performance recently staged at the Gayety Theater was begun yesterday by the District Committee of the House of Representatives. subcommittee as the leading book-makers in Washington.

Freeman told the subcommittee that he has been staging a series of mid-night performances here and that the one under discussion was not conceived as a benefit in the beginning.

Made Into Benefit.

Freeman said that the show became a benefit when he heard that the family of Ralph Holland was in desperate circumstances. Holland was one of the 24,000 gamblers who were sent to jail after they refused to "quit" on their colleagues.

Representative Bowman (Republican, West Virginia, asked Freeman if it was an accident that the performance was converted into a benefit testimonial.

"That's right," said Freeman. "You're hitting the nail on the head."

"You don't think that the public is getting a benefit out of this?" asked Bowman, and Freeman spluttered.

Just One of Lake's Jokes.

Freeman said that Jimmy Lake, veteran burlesque star, who acted as master of ceremonies at the benefit, was responsible for the erroneous conception of the show.

"Jimmy has been clowning with the newspaper men," said Freeman amid laughter. "He told them big stories about special trains from New York and all these star performers. It was just some of his press agent joking."

At the outset of the hearing, Freeman told the subcommittee that he had been a promoter for 25 years, having staged shows with such headlines as "The World's Greatest Show" and "The World's Most Sensational Show."

Jack Dempsey, Strangler Lewis, Joe Stetson and Zbytko.

In answer to a question by Gibson, he said that he had advertised the benefit performance by word of mouth in such places as lunchrooms, barber shops and pool rooms.

"And in places we call 'speakeasies'?" questioned Gibson.

"That is one place I never knew anything about," Freeman replied.

Gibson then questioned Freeman about gambling houses.

Gibson—Did Frank McCormick buy any tickets?

Freeman—No, I did not see Frank McCormick until the night of the show.

Gibson—Did he buy any tickets?

Freeman—No, I did not see him until the night of the show.

Gibson—What is Frank McCormick's business?

Freeman—He is at 212 Ninth street.

Gibson—What is he doing there?

Freeman—He is a gambler.

Gibson—Is that all the business he is engaged in?

Freeman—That is generally understood that he is one of the gambling fraternity.

Freeman—And that he is one of the big operators here in Washington?

Freeman—Yes, I have heard that.

Freeman—Yes, sir, I have heard that.

Gibson—You have not any doubt about it?

Freeman—I do have doubt—I must say I do doubt it.

Gibson—Was he connected in any way with these three men who were convicted?

Freeman—Only through the press, that I have heard.

Gibson—Did Eddy Killen buy any tickets that you know of?

Freeman—I have heard he bought some.

Gibson—Well, he bought quite a block, did he not?

Freeman—No, sir.

Gibson—I had an idea from your opening statement that you knew all about these fellows in the sporting world.

Against His Policy.

Freeman—Well, I don't know what their business is, and it would not be fair for me—a man, in my position in public life, to walk up to me and say, 'Hello, Joe, how are you?' Why, I would not be right for me to ask him what his business is. I have been walking the streets many times with my wife and some of my friends.

Gibson—Do you know what they call 'Hello, Joe, how are you?' and I would say, 'Hello, and keep on going' after they refused to 'quit' on their colleagues.

Gibson—Did Tom Moore ever talk to you that way?

Freeman—I don't know him in a restaurant. I have only met the gentleman to my knowledge once.

Freeman—I know a man they call 'Dutch' Irwin?

Freeman—I know him by name. I know him by sight.

Freeman—Yes, sir, I have met him?

Gibson—What is his business?

Freeman—The last I heard he had some horses and was—well, I have got this out of the press, now.

Denies All Knowledge.

Gibson—You have not any idea of what Irwin does?

Freeman—No, sir.

Gibson—Do you know 'Mickey' McDonough?

Freeman—I have heard of him.

Gibson—What is Mickey's business?

Freeman—I don't know.

Gibson—Did you ever see him?

Freeman—Now, I might have seen him. I have been out in different places, but I would not swear that I have seen him.

Gibson—Do you know Ryan?

Freeman—Yes, I was connected up with Mickey some way.

Gibson—No, sir, I might know the gentleman, but I do not know if he is a gambler or not. Now, I might know him by sight. I don't know the man's name.

Gibson—You have made it a point, Joe, in the interest of the business in getting a large crowd there to get some horses and was—well, I have got this out of the press, now.

Freeman—Yes, sir.

Gibson—And you have no doubt that these tickets went to speak-easies and gambling joints, as well as to bankers and brokers and candlestick makers?

Freeman—Yes, sir.

Freeman—I am telling you the truth now. I do not know anything about speak-easies, outside of what I have heard.

Gibson—You told us you have been in speak-easies, and your knowledge about them is what I have heard.

Freeman—Not in them places, though.

Gibson—You do not go into those places?

Freeman—When you see one you keep away from it.

Gibson—No, sir, I don't know where one is.

Freeman—"Nubby Knuckles"—do you know Knuckles?

Freeman—I have heard of him and know the man, yes.

Gibson—What is his business?

Freeman—I have been down in Hopeville, and I have met him around Richmond to Richmond to wrestle Pinky Gardner, and that is where I know the gentleman from.

Gibson—Have you ever seen him here in Washington?

Freeman—I have seen him on the street.

Gibson—Has he any business here?

Freeman—No, sir.

Direct Question Asked.

Gibson—Well, now, be perfectly frank. We are not finding fault with you at all. We are not asking you to tell on anybody. We are asking you to tell on the fact that Nubby Knuckles is a gambler and that he is connected with the gambling business.

Freeman—I don't know.

Gibson—You never heard of that?

Freeman—I don't know.

SPECULATION DATA ASKED IN CONGRESS

Moves Made in Both Houses to Study Charges Made by Reserve Board.

STUMBLING BLOCK SEEN

(Associated Press.)

The attention of Congress was directed yesterday to the Federal Reserve Board's statement on speculative loans with the introduction of resolutions in both House and Senate regarding the board's action.

Representative Black, of New York, offered a resolution proposing an inquiry into the board's declaration, while Senator Heflin, of Alabama, asked that the board be requested to submit a corrective plan for the speculative loans of which it complains. Neither resolution was acted upon.

There was, however, plenty of private discussion around the Capitol of the tumble on the stock exchange, following the board's warning on Wednesday night against extending use of Federal Reserve funds for speculative purposes. But leaders in both the Senate and House were inclined to regard the action as outside their domain.

The Heflin resolution went over until today without debate at the request of the board's action. It has been planning a general study of banking, and there are indications that this might be turned into a particular study of the recent developments.

Senator Glass, of Virginia, Secretary of the Treasury during the Wilson administration, is one of those who have been giving considerable thought to the question of how far the Federal Reserve funds may be loaned for use in the stock market. He has introduced a bill intended to withhold more of the money in reserve and keep it from the stock market.

However, it is generally conceded that the subject is too involved to permit of corrective legislation at this session. Nor does there seem to be any tendency to push for action. The Treasury Department is still studying Mr. Glass' proposal.

Big Stumbling Block.

The big stumbling block bothering Congress and apparently annoying the Federal Reserve Board is the need for limitation of just what is to be loaned and also a determination of just when a loan is made for speculative purposes.

It is denied that all loans by member banks of the Federal Reserve System to brokers on account of stocks and bonds are for speculative purposes, and because of this the question is asked by the members of Congress whether it is a speculative loan. It is feared that legislation to be effective would have to contain a definition of speculation and this is admittedly a big task.

The Senate banking committee held its regular session yesterday, but the introduction of the Heflin resolution was informal discussion of it among some of the members prior to the meeting.

Association to Ask Hoover to Suggest Meeting in Inaugural Address.

(Associated Press.)

Officials of the American Cotton Association, meeting here, announced yesterday that they would ask President-elect Hoover to suggest in his inaugural address a conference of farm leaders to study the needs of agriculture.

J. S. Wannamaker, of St. Matthews, S. C., president of the group, explained that if Mr. Hoover did not do this, an attempt would be made under the auspices of the association to father a resolution on a book on the representative group to consider farm relief on the basis of tariff equality.

The plan of the association, which contains resolutions for farmers of all sections but particularly the cotton raisers, was placed in the hands of the President-elect. It declared that "the tariff necessity has ceased to be a partisan political question and is endorsed by both of the leading political parties."

Police Firing Squad Ordered to Execute Assassin at Penitentiary.

DRAWN OWN DEATH SCENE

NINTH WOMAN IN HOUSE

Mexico City, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—An announcement was made today that Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of President-elect Obregon, will be executed at noon tomorrow. A police firing squad will execute Toral inside of the penitentiary. Only a limited number of newspaper men will be allowed to witness the execution, the public being excluded.

The judge of the San Angel Court placed the case in the hands of Dr. Jose Manuel Puga-Camuranc, governor of the federal district, this morning. The governor notified the director of the penitentiary of the sentence at noon, instructing him to carry out the execution exactly 24 hours after the time which was fixed the time at noon tomorrow.

Persons who have seen Toral since the supreme court denied his application for a writ that would have stayed the death sentence, said he seemed ready to die. One visitor told the Associated Press that Toral made a drawing of his coming execution, meaning this to signify a second death. He maintains that he has already died once.

Has Prepared a Will.

Toral drew up a will a few days ago. It was understood that he bequeathed to his two children, one of them now an infant, a number of drawings, which he has made in prison as well as several articles which he has written including a code of morals.

Toral was granted one of his last wishes tonight. The penitentiary authorities permitted his wife still to see him and to bring him a 10-day-old son, that he might see him once.

The authorities announced that he would be granted another, in that a Catholic priest will be with him tonight and before his execution tomorrow.

The last sunset that Toral will know was a crimson reflection into the jail corridors and courtyard where his father, mother, wife and baby entered the great gates and were escorted to the cell where he was to remain until he was executed.

Named for Executed Priest.

The baby has been named Miguel Humberto, which were the names of a Catholic priest and his brother who were executed here a year and a half ago after an unsuccessful attempt to kill Obregon with a bomb. The child, wrapped in a shawl, was brought into the cell in his mother's arms. Toral took him into his arms and fondled him.

All three adults already were dressed in mourning when they came to the penitentiary. They were shaken with grief, could not restrain their tears even while passing the prison gates.

BRITISH PRESS STIRS
ANIMOSITY OF BRITENHouse Chairman Charges
False Reports on England's Cruiser Program.

SEES AID TO PACIFISTS

(Associated Press.) Word from London that the British cruiser construction program probably would be carried out as scheduled was followed here yesterday by a denunciation of the British press by Chairman Britten, of the House Naval Committee. The chairman accused the British press with the circulation of false reports relative to a proposed curtailment of that country's warship building program at the time Congress was considering the American naval building program which yesterday was received formally at the White House for consideration.

"During the past six years," Britten declared, "whenever the Congress was considering increases for the American Navy, it has been customary for the British press to broadcast the intention of Great Britain to slow up her building program. These announcements have been taken seriously by pacifists and European patriots."

British Follow Plans. Britten added that as soon as Congress had passed the bill calling for 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier, W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the British Admiralty, said that arrangements for construction of proposed British cruisers were proceeding.

The report from London which prompted the House naval chairman to issue his statement, said if there had been a tussle in British governmental circles between the treasury and admiralty as reported over the building of two additional 10,000-ton cruisers, the admiralty appeared to have won.

In certain political quarters in London, it was said that Mr. Bridgeman and the admiralty staff had been strengthened in their argument with the treasury by the action of Congress in completing work on the American warship program.

Yesterday's dispatches from London quoted at some length comment in the British press on the American naval bill. The tone of most of the articles indicated that the press regarded the American program as the United States' own method of dealing with her own problems.

Correspondence Is Published. London, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Further correspondence between Representative Fred Britten, chairman of the House naval committee, and Lieut. Comdr. J. M. Kenworthy, secretary of the British conference on the naval situation, and parliament was published here today.

Under date of January 29, the British representative suggests that in order not to encumber discussion of the naval situation by the complicated question of sea rights there should be two separate conferences and proposes that these be held under the auspices of the interparliamentary union which meets in Geneva in August.

The British M. P., in replying today, agreed with the suggestion that the two conferences be held simultaneously. He considered the main thing is to get the discussion started as soon as possible.

Tell of Whippings at Neighbor's Home.

WOMAN DENIES CHARGE

Two sisters who had been reported to Prince Georges County police as kidnaped Monday night yesterday were located at the home of neighbors by Miss Agnes Duval, county social service worker. The two girls said they had been whipped severely by the woman in whose custody they had been left by their mother because they had not sold their quota of pastries.

The sisters, Mary Elizabeth Turnbull, 13 years old, and Ruth Turnbull, 8, told Miss Duval they had been sent out each day by Mrs. Katherine Pokorney, of Greater Capitol Heights, in whose care they had been placed by their mother, who is employed in Washington, to sell bread and punchbreads. If they did not sell their wares, they were beaten when they returned home, they declared. The children fled to the home of Mr. and Mrs. August Maske and told their stories.

Mrs. Pokorney denied the story told by the children and said she had placed the money they earned in their bank. The mother, Mrs. Robert Turnbull, is estranged from her husband, who lives in Charles County, Md., and is employed in Washington. She told State's Attorney J. Frank Parron at Upper Marlboro yesterday that she had been lied to by the girls, saying they were being well cared for and were content. The children were returned to the custody of the mother.

was released to appear in court this morning.

After being released Cramer returned to his establishment, where he silently moved about behind the bar while Batchelor stood across from him.

That Capt. Cornwall's campaign against all "public places" suspected of selling whiskey was having effect was evidenced yesterday by the paucity of customers at the two bars which had opened for business after having closed down the night before.

When he has finally forced these two establishments to close, Capt. Cornwall says he will move his men to other establishments in the precinct where he suspects whisky is sold, of which there are said to be about nine or ten.

WAREHOUSE RUINED
BY 4-ALARM BLAZESagging of Roof Endangers
Firemen in Battle to Save Building.

Loss Placed at $10,000
A four-alarm fire, which broke out late yesterday afternoon in the south end of a warehouse of the Hub Furniture Co., located at North Capitol and Pierce streets northeast, caused several thousand dollars damage. An accurate estimate of the damage, which was unofficially set at about $10,000, was not available early last night.

Before the blaze was subdued, nineteen engine companies, five truck companies and the water tower had been sent to the scene.

The fire was confined to the upper part of the building, a large brick structure, which was said by officials of the furniture company to contain large stock of merchandise. Those were brought into play through windows, and the water tower was directed against a glass skylight in the south end.

As soon as the flames were brought under control, firemen were ordered out of the structure by Chief George Walsh on account of the condition of the roof, which was sagging badly.

A huge crowd gathered to watch the fire, part of which was suddenly dispersed when a hose coupling burst, drenching them with chilling water. Sibley Hospital is located directly across North Capitol street from the warehouse, while the installation department of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. and the Western Electric Co. is across Pierce street.

New Tile Is Held Step

Chicago, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—A new tile, one-sixth as heavy and more than twice as fire resistant as that now in use was described before the American Ceramic Society today by Prof. George A. The new material, invented by a Chicago man, is uninjured by water when red hot, is proof against acid and weather, and will not lose its shape or deteriorate with age, Prof. Bole said. It can be sawed or bored and made into shapes not possible with present materials.

WOMAN VICTIM ASKS
MERCY FOR THIEVESPleads for Two Men Who Helped Her Recover Jewelry They Stole.

BOTH GET PRISON TERMS

New York, Feb. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Because they helped her recover part of her valuables, Mrs. George Curtis Treadwell urged leniency for the two men who robbed her of $30,000 worth of jewelry and clothing two years ago, when they came up for sentence today. Charles Montemagno, 31, chauffeur, and Moe Shapiro, 29, clerk, of the Bronx, pleaded guilty before Judge Morris Koenig in general sessions. Montemagno, whose present address is Sing Sing Prison, where he is serving a three-year term for burglary, received an additional sentence of one year and two months to two and a half years. Shapiro received a sentence of one year and six months to two and a half years.

Both men had been indicted for grand larceny in the first degree, but were allowed to plead guilty to attempted grand larceny in the second degree. Both Assistant District Attorney Morris Ranger and Mrs. Treadwell urged leniency in view of the fact that the men were able to recover $3,000 worth of the stolen property.

The robbery was a climax to a party in which Mrs. Treadwell, whose address is in Albany, N. Y., had returned from her trip and was visiting her mother, Mrs. P. P. Mitchell, at the Park Lane Hotel here when the two bags, containing jewelry and clothes, were taken.

Shapiro was arrested in January, 1927, and confessed. He has been at liberty since on bail. His confession implicated Montemagno, but the latter was not arrested until last July.

Slow Midshipmen
Ordered to Resign
Sixty-two Found Too Far Behind to Catch Up in Work at Annapolis.

Special to The Washington Post.
Annapolis, Md., Feb. 8.—Sixty-two midshipmen have been found so far behind in scholastic work that they will be compelled to resign from the Naval Academy, South Carolina, the deficiency list compiled by the academic board, was sent to the Navy Department yesterday and prompt action was taken thereon. Monthly averages since the beginning of the academic term last October determined the number of delinquents. The former custom of having midshipmen tested or reviewed work was abandoned several years ago.

The percentage of failures is smaller than at any time in the last five years, it was stated, and authorities are gratified that the regiment as a whole is maintaining a better scholastic record. Of those who will be obliged to resign only one is a senior. The rest is apportioned among the other three classes as follows: Second, 2; third, 7; and fourth, 52.

Veterans in One Bureau
(Associated Press.)
Consolidation of governmental veterans activities in one bureau, but not under the direction of the existing Veterans Bureau, was advocated yesterday by former Senator Rice Means, president of the company that publishes the Stars and Stripes, at a hearing before the House committee on expenditures.

He opposed the Johnson bill, which would give the Veterans Bureau control of the Bureau of Pensions and the national soldiers' homes, contending it "would cause a disturbance in the ranks of veterans of all wars."

SCRAPPING OF PLANE
CARRIERS IS WANTEDExpense of Operating 2 Huge Vessels Held Too Great
by House Body.

SUPPLY BILL IS PASSED

(Associated Press.) The possibility of Congress being asked to withdraw from active service the new giant airplane carriers Lexington and Saratoga because of their costly operation was mentioned in the House yesterday shortly before the $347,000,000 annual naval supply bill was passed and sent to the Senate. Representative French (Republican), Idaho, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee on naval finances, said the ships, the newest additions to Uncle Sam's fighting forces, were proving expensive to operate and that the appropriations committee seriously was considering the advisability of taking them from active commission with the fleet. He indicated this might be done as soon as the huge vessels, each of 33,000 tons displacement, could be replaced by carriers less expensive to operate.

Except for these ships, the Navy has but one carrier—the Langley, an old converted cruiser. In addition, an aircraft carrier of 13,800 tons would be provided under the naval construction program approved by Congress and sent to the President for consideration.

Dry Dock Plan Defeated.
French did not amplify his remarks, which were made during the discussion of an amendment to provide $700,000 to enlarge dry-dock facilities at the Navy Yard, Puget Sound, Washington, to accommodate the Lexington and Saratoga, the longest ships in the Navy. The amendment, offered by Representative Miller (Republican), Washington, was defeated.

The bill was passed by the House practically without change in the recommendations of the committee which framed it. It contemplates maintenance of the Navy at approximately its present size for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

At $14,595,000 more than the supply bill of last year, the measure would provide for an increase of 5

1205 and ask for Miss Harvey.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Federal Reserve Board's warning against the expansion of speculative loans should not have had the effect of a bombshell. Market operators have no quarrel with the board's assertion that credit must be kept available for the legitimate needs of commerce and industry. It is to the interest of the markets that ample and cheap funds be kept available to commerce and industry.

Can the Federal Reserve Board, however, prevent money from flowing into the markets when conditions are such as to attract it? Recent statements show increases in stock market loans made by member banks on their own account, in loans made by member banks for the account of out-of-town banks, and loans for the account of "other" others being corporations, institutions and wealthy individuals who through their banks place their own funds on call in the market. These "other" loans, it is estimated, account for fully 50 per cent of the total credit used by the stock market and they are beyond the control of the Reserve Board.

These "other" loans will continue to find their way to the market as long as conditions are such as to attract them. In addition, there is a considerable amount of money available for lending on collateral, money that no bank can reasonably refuse to lend if the collateral is satisfactory. Altogether, it probably will be found that there is enough money available to enable the market to maintain a position with but a modicum of assistance from the Federal Reserve member banks.

In this connection, Representative Louis T. McFadden, chairman of the House committee on banking and currency, says: "I do not think the assumption is warranted that brokers' loans are depriving business of funds, nor that all of the security loans are unproductive. * * * I do not think that the Federal Reserve System should at present concern itself about security loans unless there is a tendency to speculation in commodities which means a disturbance in the industrial mechanism. To disturb industry merely to prevent stock speculation seems to me to be unwarranted, and would work a gross injustice on the business man and the working man."

The old idea that the stock market is, in effect, a glorified gambling place has been supplanted with a new conception of its fundamentally important place in the economic scheme. In the past the market itself, through the inexorable functioning of the laws of supply and demand, has effectively kept prices in balance. The test that may come after Wednesday of next week may prove that the market is working in obedience to an economic law over which the Federal Reserve Board has no jurisdiction.

NAVY PROMOTIONS.

The bill which was reported to the Senate Wednesday by Senator Stetson in behalf of the naval affairs committee is of vital importance to the Navy. It has the approval of Secretary Wilbur. A similar measure has already been enacted in the House. The measure is not one that will require lengthy discussion in the Senate. In the interest of maintaining an efficient personnel and in fairness to the naval officers, it should become law.

The bill provides for a more equitable system of promotions. Senator Stetson terms it "a smoothing-out measure to remove inequities and to equalize the opportunities, subject, of course, to their individual professional ability, of all officers in their progress through service careers." Promotion, under the present system, is in charge of a selection board of nine rear admirals. Officers not chosen for advancement before reaching certain ages or before completing certain periods of service are placed upon the retired list. Sometimes the Navy list contains congested groups, or "humps," and the men so listed do not have an equal chance for promotion with those not within these groups. The measure would afford the men in the "humps" better opportunity to advance through increased regularity in the number of promotions in each grade annually, without increasing the actual number of promotions, which is subject to the number of vacancies.

The measure would equalize the periods spent by each officer in each higher grade and insure to each man an opportunity to gain the experience necessary for advanced work. The percentage distribution of officers of the various grades would be readjusted, slightly decreasing the number of lieutenants and increasing the number of commanders, lieutenant commanders, junior grade lieutenants and ensigns. Interests of the large group of wartime officers amalgamated with the regular Navy in 1920 would be protected. Stagnation in promotions would be reduced and officers who pass regularly through the lower grades would be assured of opportunity for selection before becoming subject to retirement.

With opportunity equalized and assurance given that officers may find progressive careers in the Navy, the stability and efficiency of the personnel should be appreciably increased.

AMERICA INDUSTRIALIZED.

Much political interest has been manifest in the bill before the Senate to reapportionment membership in the House of Representatives among the States. The measure is no less interesting from an economic point of view, as it represents the evolution the country has gone through since the last reapportionment was made in 1910. Since then nearly 30,000,000 people have been added to the population.

A glance at a map showing the gains and losses in the States through reapportionment reveals that the population has been shifting to the coast or border States. Oklahoma is the only State gaining a representative which is not on the national boundary. On the other hand, it is principally the inland agricultural States that are losing. The Rocky Mountain States have just held their own, Arizona being the only one to gain and none of them losing.

The heaviest loser is Missouri, in the heart of the agricultural district. In spite of the fact that Missouri will lose three representatives that State shows a gain of more than 275,000 people in the last 30 years. None of the losing States have fewer people than in 1910, but the increase in population has all gone to more favored sections. Indiana, Kentucky, Iowa and Mississippi will lose two representatives each. New York will lose one in spite of an increase from 9,113,614 to 11,550,000 in population. Other States on the losing list are Alabama, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Nebraska, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Vermont and Virginia with one each.

California and Florida, the boom States, are among those gaining. California leads the list with six additional representatives, while Florida gets one. The gain in California represents an increase in population from 2,377,549 in 1910 to 4,556,000 in 1920, almost 100 per cent. Having increased its inhabitants by upward of 2,000,000 Michigan is second in the winning list with four new representatives. Ohio is third with three; New Jersey and Texas are to get two each, and Arizona, Connecticut, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Washington one each.

No better example of the migration from farms to cities could be cited. States which are losing representatives show normal growth of their cities and can blame the loss to migration of the agricultural population. Most of California's increased population has been concentrated in Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and other cities. Growth of Michigan is directly traceable to expansion of the automobile industry. Ohio, which is dotted with manufacturing cities, is one of the largest gainers, while its bordering States, Indiana and Kentucky, which are agricultural, both lost. North Carolina's gain can be attributed to the development of industry in that State in recent years. South Carolina and Georgia were able to hold their own for the same reason. All the other Southern States, except Florida, and most of the States in the Mississippi Valley were among the losers. The redistribution of members of Congress is convincing evidence that the United States is rapidly becoming an industrial Nation.

REGULATING THE OIL OUTPUT.

Along with the report that oil production in January was the greatest in history comes a dispatch from Oklahoma which gives hope that the industry is on the way toward solution of the problem of overproduction. The situation has come to a point where drastic action is necessary to keep the oil industry from demoralization and to conserve the supplies of this valuable product that are now being wasted. The industry can not without disaster continue producing 7,000,000 barrels more than is consumed each month.

The first step toward actual limitation of crude oil production was taken at a conference of operators in the greater Seminole field. They voted to reduce the daily output by 73,000 barrels and to slow up drilling. Development of newly discovered fields will be curtailed and efforts will be made to reduce the present excessive supply on hand. The agreement applies to all the larger fields of Oklahoma. Similar conferences are to be held in Texas and California and if satisfactory arrangements for limitation of output can be made, it should go a long way toward solution of the overproduction problem. These three States produce approximately 85 per cent of the present crude supply.

In taking such action the oil producers will increase their own profits and serve the interests of the whole country, since a supply of oil is the first necessity of an industrial civilization. There is no reason in wildcat drillings, in abandonment of oil reservoirs when a small portion of the oil has been removed, and in glutting the market so that wholesale waste is encouraged. The proper place to conserve the oil supply is in the ground. It is to be hoped that the Texas and California producers will cooperate in further cutting down production until demands have caught up with the supply, and that the new oil export association may be of service in solving problems of the foreign market.

CRUEL AND UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT.

The Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church warns the people of Michigan to resist the organized effort it says is being made for the repeal of the habitual criminal law. "Do not be moved by skillfully constructed 'sob stories'," it says. "No man, woman, mother or father needs to go to the penitentiary for life as an habitual criminal." The board lists four ways of avoiding such a penalty, all of which may be expressed in the injunction "Do not commit a felony."

Opposition to the habitual criminal act in Michigan is not against the act itself. The board, willfully or innocently, misses the point entirely. Opposition is against the widespread application of the term "felony," under which all offenders of the prohibition laws must face the same fate as murderers. It is well enough to say to a man: "Do not commit felony." But when "felony" is made to include petty misdemeanors, and even acts that are not intrinsically wrongful, there is scant chance of getting the injunction obeyed.

It seems likely that the opposition to Michigan's habitual criminal act will be triumphant unless the definition of "felon" is changed. What would be best for the State—to continue under the protection the habitual criminal act affords, or to cast the law aside entirely because reform forces are unwilling to make a concession? The fate of the statute is bound up in the answer to the question, for the people of Michigan will hardly support a law that places a large part of their number in jeopardy of cruel and unusual punishment for what can not be made anything other than a misdemeanor. The United States Supreme Court would probably set aside Michigan's law as in violation of the eighth amendment to the Constitution.

DONA MARIA CRISTINA.

More than devotion to the throne is shown in the grief that is expressed in Spain at the tomb of Queen Mother Dona Maria Cristina. The whole country was in mourning yesterday when the funeral services were held in Madrid. The body was interred in a tomb close to that of the late King Don Alfonso XII. It is not surprising that Spain should pay the highest tribute to the Queen Mother, when her life of service and devotion to that country is contemplated.

Dona Maria Cristina was from her birth an imperial princess and archduchess of Austria. She married Don Alfonso XII in 1879 and was welcomed to Spain as queen. Six years later the king died and left the government in her hands. Two daughters had been born to the royal couple, but the throne was left temporarily without a male heir. The queen proved her ability by settling a difficult political situation and readily gained the confidence of her people.

A few months after the king's death a son was born to Queen Dona Maria, and became, from the instant of his birth, King Alfonso XIII. This happy event increased the popularity of Dona Maria. She remained at the head of the government as regent during all the years until her son became of age, proving herself able in statecraft as well as a competent mother and instructor of the king.

When King Alfonso became of age Cristina relinquished the affairs of government entirely to his hands, and since that time has served only as a counselor. Her recent years had been devoted to philanthropic work. Her death brought heart-felt sorrow to the people of Spain, and she will long be lovingly remembered by them.

THE LAND OF ACADIE

By CHARLES W. G. WARD.

The Associated Press dispatches recently carried an article dealing with a passage by Congress of a bill creating the Acadia National Park on Mount Desert Island, Me. Statement was made to the effect that the word "Acadia" was an Indian term, probably descriptive of the country.

The word is derived from a Micmac Indian word which, as nearly as I can indicate it, is pronounced in the Micmac tongue "Akade," with strong accent on the final syllable. It means "abounding in," and carrying such meaning forms a part of a number of names given to towns in the maritime provinces: For example, Shubenacadie, abounding in ground nuts; Tracadie, abounding in sea grasses.

The history of the bestowal of the name is probably not very well known and may be interesting. When, in 1604 the French exploring party under De Monts, Pontrevise, Poutrincourt and Samuel Champlain crossed the Atlantic it touched land first on the southern coast of Nova Scotia, sailed through Digby Gut across the beautiful Annapolis basin and made its first landing at what is now the town of Annapolis, old Port Royal. With the beauty of the location firmly impressed upon their minds, the adventurers continued on a further voyage of exploration, crossed the Bay of Fundy and sailed along the New England coast to Passamaquoddy Bay. They were at least within sight of Mount Desert Island. After a miserable winter spent in Passamaquoddy Bay, they returned in the spring of 1605 to the spot that so much pleased them on first sight. There, at the head of the basin where land and water mingle all their charms, they established the first French settlement in America.

The spot was the center of Micmac power. There lived their Chief Memberton, who had already reached the age of 100 years. The valley was comparatively as famed for its fertility as it is today. The French made friends, as, in fact, they always did, with the Indian tribes. The Micmacs accepted Christianity, and the aged Chief Memberton was among the first to be baptized by the priests with the expedition. The Order of the Good Time was established and once a week the French officers met and fraternized with the Indian chieftains, learning their rather simple language very readily. De Monts' reports to his sovereign are still to be found among the archives in the Louvre. It had been the intention to apply the name of New France to all of the country taken possession of in the name of the French sovereign, but De Monts reported the region now known as the maritime provinces as a land of such beauty and abundance that when he personally requested that the Indian name for abundance be bestowed upon the country, his request was granted. The early French spelling was "Acadie," Acadia being the Anglicized form.

In selecting the name Acadia, it was the announced intention of the promoters of the park to apply some name characteristic of the country. It may be seriously doubted whether or not the name is a happy one, especially as it is probably true that Mount Desert Island was never included in the region named "Acadie."

In view of the fact that the Acadia National Park is the first national park that has been established east of the Mississippi River, its christening is perhaps a matter of such interest and importance as to warrant publication of this article.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Coronation of King Zogu.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Associated Press, has recently published and keeps repeating that the coronation of the King of the Albanians will take place in April. This piece of "news" is a pure invention. It has long ago been decided that the coronation would take place in September, 1929, the day of the month having not yet been determined. PAIK KONITZA, Minister of Albania.

Neighboring Givers.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Washington is highly pleased at the response for funds for the Community Chest's 57. Many words of praise are being said, but forgotten and unthanked are the thousands of Virginia and Maryland residents who gave generously, while a number of the "57" are charities that refuse aid to those outside its boundaries. A word of thanks in the speeches and newspaper columns is all that is expected. G. C. SMITH, Hyattsville, February 7.

Another View of L'Enfant.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It makes no difference as to how many letters of Washington and Jefferson Attorneys C. Harmon has read, or what his conclusions are; he has not looked at the L'Enfant question in the proper light.

L'Enfant had planned a beautiful city. Lots were to be sold in order to raise revenue so the building of the Federal City might go forward. These lots were to be sold at auction, but the speculators in real estate wanted to know in advance which were the best. The speculators went to L'Enfant and asked for copies of his plan. L'Enfant, doing what any really patriotic American should do, refused to give them a look and was not moved by their wealth.

The speculators and land grabbers went to Washington and set up a howl. Washington fell for their salesmanship tactics and ordered L'Enfant to furnish the speculators with copies of the plan. L'Enfant, for good patriotic reasons, stuck to his guns and refused to yield. Washington got sore and fired the Frenchman, but afterward admitted that he didn't know how such genius could be replaced.

Elliot, who was L'Enfant's assistant, probably having a finger in the pie with the land grabbers, had copies of the plan made and distributed to the realtors, who then found which were the best lots to buy. Maybe Washington, Elliot, and the auctioneer all made some money out of the deal. However, the best lots went to the speculators, who resold them at huge profits. L'Enfant died in poverty on a southern Maryland farm, and not until 1909 did the United States Government recognize his genius and give him an impressive burial at Arlington. So L'Enfant, brave Frenchman, patriot and genius, sleeps where he should always have slept, among the heroes of the Nation, on a beautiful knoll overlooking the city that he planned.

A memorial to L'Enfant? By all means! And let it be a memorial befitting one of his genius, patriotism and character.

Broadcasting the Inaugural Address.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On Wednesday night I happened to attend the meeting of the Indiana Society at the Willard, and there listened to an address by Mrs. William Wolf Smith in which she made what in my opinion is a most admirable suggestion.

It is especially timely, as the public as well as the Government is giving much thought to inculcating good will and amity between the nations of the earth. In the interest of this subject President-elect Hoover has lately vis-

Youth Always Seems More Silly When Your Rheumatism Is Worse.

By ROBERT QUILLLEN

THE fox, being unable to reach the grapes, consoled himself with the reflection that they probably were sour.

Modern psychologists, looking beneath the surface to discover the hidden motives that prompt us, find most of our opinions formed in the same manner.

We jeer at the thing we covet in vain.

In a land of theoretical equality, people jeer at royalty and ridicule the nobility. The degree of their sincerity may be measured by the fact that police reserves are called out to keep the awe-stricken mob from mauling a visiting prince. We jeer at royal blood because we want it and can't have it.

The depraved of both sexes curse and ridicule the "goody goody," out their scorn contains a note of pathos. In their shamed, sad hearts they long to be decent, and only by jeering at purity can they reconcile themselves to continued existence without it.

Get beneath the surface of a cynic who ridicules religion and you find a mystic and a dreamer embittered by his failure to find the peace of God that more humble people have achieved. "The fools hypnotize themselves," says he. But he means to say: "I searched for it in vain. Since I couldn't find it, it must be a delusion peculiar to the simple."

We jeer at the politicians who rank as minor gods and ridicule the people who applaud them, but we do it because we covet praise, also, and get none of it.

We jeer at the manners and extravagances of the new rich because we yearn in vain for money enough to live as they live.

We jeer at grand opera and mock those who delight in ancient paintings, and thus we conceal our resentment of the fact that we haven't the capacity to appreciate such things.

When we are young we jeer at the discretion of age because we are conscious of being foolish, and when we are old we denounce the joys and follies of youth because we long in vain for the appetites of our youth.

We jeer at bathing suits because our own bodies are ridiculous; we jeer at the fat man in plus-fours because we have neither the time nor the money for golf; we jeer at college graduates because we resent the hard fate that denied us a degree; we jeer at Greek letter fraternities because we were denied opportunity to join one; we jeer at diamonds because our jewelry came from the 10-cent store.

Our opinions are the product of our envy, and we cultivate scorn to lessen our longings.

Benedict Arnold betrayed his country because it denied him the honors his ability deserved.

And unless we watch ourselves closely, all of us who meet with denial will turn traitor to the thing we love.

(Copyright, 1929.)

Several of the nations south of us. No doubt he will express the same sentiments in his inaugural address. The suggestion of Mrs. Smith is that the Congress cause this inaugural address to be radioed to all the countries of the world having radio facilities. Her thought is that if this is done by the Government rather than by private enterprise it will give added weight to the words of the address. In referring to the cultivation of this good feeling Mr. Hoover will not be speaking for himself alone, but will be the mouthpiece of the whole country. Hence, if his words are thus sent abroad by the Government itself they will impress both the peoples and the governments of the countries to which it is sent.

It is true there is one drawback—the words will be in English and the listeners in other countries may not all understand them, but they will hear his voice and will know he is speaking for a great nation, and in the interest of universal peace. It is a wonderful thing that the voice, in its natural tones, can be thus transmitted across oceans and mountains, and when the first voice to be thus heard by all the countries is that of one speaking for a great nation and in the interest of international friendship it will go down in history as an epoch Congress should at once take up and act on this suggestion of Mrs. Smith.

Education Before Prohibition.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Durant has, of course, wasted his $25,000 so far as his purchase plan, or any other plan, will accomplish the enforcement of prohibition. This country is beginning to realize that there is a vast difference between passing a prohibition law and enforcing it. A majority of the people can pass a law, but that majority can not enforce it. It is a debatable question if a majority of the people of the United States are in favor of prohibition. The quicker this country fully realizes the impossibility of enforcement, and acknowledges it, the better, for the foundations of law and order are being rapidly undermined. $24,000,000 or $240,000,000 can not accomplish the impossible. Until education and a sincere desire for abstinence of alcoholic drink, and a willingness to practice it, is instilled into the minds of not only a mere majority, but of practically all of the people, the making, using and selling of drink will continue. There is not enough power or money in the country to stop it.

The only other way to enforce it is to stop the growing of grain, fruit and sugar, for as long as these grow, alcohol can and will be made until the people make up their minds to stop using it. How possible is that? To stop the production of the things from which alcohol can be made would mean the starvation of the race. Unless the Nation stops opposing the laws of nature and, realizing its mistake, adopts some curbing and controlling method of handling this question, it will bankrupt the country both financially and morally and our civilization will crumble through the weakening of our respect for all law. It is being demonstrated daily. DAVID JUDD.

Trouble Ahead.

Boston Transcript: There is said to be "troubling problem" in Washington. There surely will be if all these people slated for the Cabinet have to be lodged.

PRESS COMMENT.

And There You Are.
Indianapolis News: Hoover is working for patronage harmony, while some of the boys only are working for patronage.

The Normal Rate.
Minneapolis Journal: After 28 years on the force, a Chicago policeman has made his first arrest. It's a lot to say just about the normal Chicago rate!

Tut, Tut!
New York Sun: Prince Hediatullah, Amanullah's eldest son, is in Berlin, on his way to Afghanistan. If everything goes as scheduled, there will soon be another member of the family who is a former ruler.

Advance Notice.
Atlanta Constitution: Fearful that the pie-hunters will be unable to get in touch with Mr. Hoover, we give advance notice that his address will be 1009 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C., after March 4.

No Cause for Alarm.
Ohio State Journal: There is a good deal of alarmist talk to the effect that monogamy is doomed, but we imagine the innate conservatism of the race will avert the peril, if only on account of the wife's relatives consideration.

Poor Oklahoma.
Topeka Daily Capital: Oklahoma's presidential electors failed to get their vote in under the wire, and if the election had been close enough might have nullified it, throwing it into the House at Washington. This only backs up our contention that Oklahoma ought properly to be reduced to the status of a territory, having its governors and other officials named for it at Washington, until it grows up morally and mentally.

Ankle Socks.
Philadelphia Inquirer: The winter vogue of ankle socks which the girls are wearing encourages manufacturers to expect a corresponding popularity for a summer design of all silk. The present problem is to find an elastic cuff that will cling to the leg. Nature's failure to cooperate at this point is believed to be only a temporary hindrance. When the new style is adopted and added to the existing wardrobe, neckties in August, only wrinkles will be needed to complete the ensemble. The interchange of seasons, as far as fashions go, will be a fully accomplished fact. Climate experts deny that this is taking place; but probably they are as wrong as their brother scientists, the anthropologists, who think human beings wear clothes primarily for comfort and protection against the weather.

Blessed Radio.
Richmond Daily Globe: The Lord bless radio! It has put old people back into the world. Rheumatism and other infirmities common to old age no longer are able to break the contact between the individual and the world. Grandpa, without taking off his house slippers, can turn a little "thingamajig" and hear politics, news, sermons, hog markets and crop reports; and now and then a comical dialogue that makes him chuckle. And grandma can serenely sit beside a little box with dials and listen to an orchestra, a band, a grand opera, a discourse on garden seeds and garden culture, how to grow pretty flowers with the best of success, and how to best make preserves, apple butter and grape jelly and how for 10 cents one can make a dollar apron; and all such diversions and useful hints. Yes, radio comes as a blessing to the aged and shut-ins. It makes grandpa forget his "rheumatism," and grandma seems to suffer less from the aches in her back. And the world is at their elbows. Bless radio!

30 KILLED AS PEACE PARADE ENDS IN RIOT

Bombay Truce Fete Climaxes In Fiercest Rioting Yet; Armored Cars Fire.

DEATH TOLL IS MOUNTING

Bombay, India, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—A peace parade of Mohammedans, Pathans and Hindus tonight broke up into mobs of fighting men and the sixth successive day ended in carnage. It was estimated that 30 were killed and more than 100 injured tonight in the fighting in the Pydhon district where the troops were compelled to fire. It was impossible to estimate the total casualties in the large sections of the Bazaar area over which the fighting spread and into which it was impossible to venture without grave danger. The fighting was the most bitter since the first outbreak of the disorders.

The procession was the outcome of an agreement among leaders of all sects to end the bloody conflicts which began over rumors that Pathans used Hindu children as sacrifices. Peace-loving elements of both races had hailed the announcement of the armistice, and joined shoulder to shoulder in a march through streets along which the shops were being reopened everywhere.

Then, in the Mandapura quarter, the head of the procession stumbled over one dead Hindu, slashed with knives and lying in the street. In the excitement of this discovery, trouble flared up without warning in all parts of the city which had seen the disturbances previously. Hindus and Moslems who had been fraternizing freely in each other's quarters suddenly found themselves isolated in hostile territory and fought their way out to avoid slaughter.

The military, reinforced by armored cars, moved continually between the fighting throngs and several times fired on the mob, once with a machine gun. Casualties, mostly cases of stabbing, streamed into the hospitals which quickly filled. In some quarters mobs looted shops and houses.

The new outbreak was blamed on sturdy Hindu peasants whom Hindu shopkeepers had brought in from the country to protect them against Moslem attacks. It appeared that these "protectors" disappointed by finding a truce had been made, flaily declined to accept it.

The mobs still were rioting at midnight. The outlook is depressing since both sides are convinced that their opponents were guilty of having broken the truce.

Boone's Teacups Lost To Woman Descendant

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 8 (N.Y.W.S.).—A set of teacups and saucers which were used by Daniel Boone, Kentucky pioneer and settler, more than 150 years ago, today reposed in keeping of Charles Williams, of Estill County mountains, a descendant of the famed Indian fighter.

The State Court of Appeals ruled that Mrs. Molly Williams Howard, also a Boone descendant, was not entitled to the cups and saucers, even though she claimed they were given her by will of a relative. She lost in the lower courts and then appealed, alleging age and infirmity prevented her reaching court until instructions against her had been given the jury.

Submarine Escape Tests Held Success

Lieut. Comdr. Dunbar Believes All Craft Will Soon Be Given Apparatus.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Lieut. Comdr. P. H. Dunbar, in charge of underwater safety tests on the submarine S-4, today said they had been so successful he believed the escape apparatus and lungs will be installed in all the Navy's submarines. He said the tests showed they could prevent catastrophes such as befell the S-4 slightly more than a year ago when it was rammed by the cruiser Paulding and 40 lives lost.

Repairs were being completed today to the periscope which leaked and prevented the attempts to make safety tests at a depth of 130 feet on Wednesday.

It is planned later this week to allow the entire crew of fifteen men to leave the submarine by the safety devices.

CLASH ON INDEMNITY BY CHINA AND JAPAN

Tokyo Insists Both Sides Forego Payments for Tsinanfu Affair.

IMPOSSIBLE, SAYS WANG

Shanghai, China, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—C. T. Wang, foreign minister in the Nationalist government, announced today that the negotiations with Japan over settlement of the Tsinanfu incidents had reached a deadlock. He said that Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese Minister, had been instructed by Tokyo to insist that both sides forego claims for damages from the fighting that occurred at Tsinanfu. Earlier the two negotiators had agreed that there should be mutual compensations for these damages.

According to Wang, he and Yoshizawa agreed that each country was to compensate the other for the losses of life and property caused by the incident, but tonight, he said, the Japanese Minister had proposed that the compensation be mutually foregone.

Wang agreed that he replied he was unable to agree to such a proposal, as "China's losses include 5,000 dead and millions of dollars property damage, while Japan's losses were trivial, and that therefore he considered the point vital and would be unable to proceed with the agreement if this point were to be removed."

The Chinese foreign minister said that he considered Japan's action as "a last-minute bombshell which nullified the entire negotiation." He said that there were no plans for further meetings and that he was unable to see the outcome of the deadlock.

Physician on Liner Disappears at Sea

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The disappearance at sea of Dr. H. T. Rosetter, ship's doctor on the Cunarder Caronia, was discovered when the liner arrived at quarantine today from Havana. A note found in the doctor's cabin informed ship's officers of his intention of ending his life. He was last seen pacing the deck late Thursday night.

Dr. Rosetter, 48 years old, had been with the Cunard line for ten years.

VALERA GETS MONTH FOR VISITING ULSTER

Irish Republican Refuses to Speak in English; Uses Gaelic in Court.

IS SILENT ON SENTENCE

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Eamon de Valera tonight began serving a sentence of one month's imprisonment after his conviction on a charge of violating the civil authorities act forbidding his entry into northern Ireland territory.

At the conclusion of evidence regarding the republican leader's arrest on Tuesday at the Ulster border, Patrick J. O'Donoghue, the presiding magistrate, gave de Valera an opportunity to speak in his own defense. The defendant, who had been taken off the Dublin train at Newry while en route to Belfast to open a Gaelic bazaar, replied in Gaelic.

"Irish is not the language of these courts," the magistrate responded. "The official language is English."

The crown solicitor then interposed with the remark that de Valera understood English and was merely playing-acting when he spoke Gaelic.

In passing sentence the magistrate said that de Valera by his demeanor, not only failed to offer a reason or excuse but seemed to have flouted the whole administration of justice in northern Ireland and expressed the belief that the defendant was there in consequence of his own deliberate act. He stated that under the act, the magistrates could impose a term of imprisonment up to two years and a heavy fine, but in the hope that the defendant might even yet reconsider his attitude, the magistrates had confined themselves to sentencing him to one month's imprisonment in the first division. Imprisonment of this class meant that de Valera could wear his own clothes, send out for his own food, if he wished, and have newspapers brought him.

de Valera made no comment on hearing the sentence and was quickly ushered from the court. The case was not marked by any demonstration.

Brown continued his pursuit of Sadler and finally caught him. At a hearing before Police Magistrate Harrington, both Sadler and Brown were held to await the action of the coroner.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, M. D.
The Parent Counselor.

Animated Gab.
T last a prominent visitor from foreign shores who isn't going to write a book about us. However he's the only unique individual who ever walked a gang-plank. He wasn't surrounded by ship repairs for an interview.
Setting? Absolutely. He came down the plank horizontal and in a box at last.
Dead? No. He's the coming man of a new age. He represents the coming age—al most the future fathers, mothers and teachers.
Physically, he's a wonderful specimen. His unblemished complexion has never known a shaving cream. His clothes have never advertised klean kid clothes. He's been cultured kinds.
But how he can talk! Four hours of animated by 50,000 volts of electric current.
Now we've guessed. He's a robot— one of those mechanical men who are designed to serve as traffic officers, store salesmen and to substitute fathers for boys and girls who cry for family pelship.
But—and what a but! The engineer who built this man which talks, rises and sits down, confesses: "It can't work, for that requires a sense of balance."
And a sense of balance, apparently, is the one thing a robot can not have. Here's the text for today, boys and girls—"A Sense of Balance."
Just as surely as night follows day, you are going to be in competition when you grow up with all sorts of mechanical devices to do away with your labor.
But with every device substituting animated gab for real salesmanship, there will be all the more call for human beings whose sales talk is animated by initiative, imagination, and a sense of balance.
So when we are young let's not get robot habits. Let's get up and walk on our own feet. That's more than any robot can do.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

Corrective Mental Hygiene.

I have a habit of observing my own behavior. I am trying not to get into perspective or so self-analytical as to make it harmful, but it seems to me one can correct the workings of his mind just as one can correct some malfunctioning of the body. I got this idea by reading an article on "corrective hygiene" and I wondered if there were any such thing as corrective mental hygiene?

ANSWER.—Dr. Watson, one of our great behaviorists, says: "A boy or girl can check his behavior three or four times a month. For example, 'For days I fought with my parents. Two or three times last week I have been depressed and tried to find excuses for not going to school and doing my other work.' Or, to change the picture, 'I have been getting too loud and boisterous and too excited, and taking too many risks in driving an automobile.' Thus, Dr. Watson recommends, 'Having taught girls and boys to observe their own behavior why can't we teach them to get themselves out of the jam they have gotten into?'

The behaviorists goal would be that every girl of 13 or 14 should know of the functions of her own body and mind, just as a boy may take to pieces and put together a clock.
My "Know Thyself" department of help service has a number of simply stated monographs helpful to young people similarly situated to "Analyst." Two are "Are You a Contractive or an Expansive." "How to Help an Interlocutor Complex."

Home Censorship.
How old should a person be before he can receive and open his own mail?

ANSWER.—As soon as children can tear open an envelope or use a paper knife.

In writing to little children print the letters in the words and draw little sketches. How the youngster will watch for the mailman! With older children the art of writing and receiving letters should be revised as it strengthens the bonds between relatives and provides written self-expression for young letter writers. With still older children letter receiving and sending provides an outlet for harmless secrets and mysteries so dear to the early teen. With youth which has been brought up to respect the right of others the chance to handle its own mail proves that it is a poor rule which does not work both ways. (Copyright, 1929.)

Stimson Sails Feb. 23 To Take New Post Here

Manila, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Gov. Gen. Henry L. Stimson has made tentative plans to start for Washington February 23 on the steamship President Pierce, which is due at San Francisco, March 20.

People here generally take it for granted that Stimson will become Secretary of State in the Hoover Cabinet. Manuel Queson, president of the Philippine senate, told a caucus of nationalist party senators a few days ago that Stimson told him he was to take that post. The governor general has declined to comment upon the report that he is to be Secretary of State, although he admitted he has accepted an appointment to some office by the President-elect.

What the Elementary Schools of Washington Are Doing Educationally

A Series of Brief Articles Prepared Under the Direction of Superintendent Frank W. Ballou.

XX—PHYSICAL TRAINING

Aims and Purposes.

The fundamental aim of physical education is to secure normal, healthful development of the individual and the acquisition of habits of healthful activity—physical, mental and social. This aim is for the great mass of public-school children and not for a select few. It seeks to give opportunity for ethical training as well as body training which will be of value not only in these early years, but in the years to come. It purposes to present situations which call for physical efficiency, vigor, grace, skill, pleasure, right mental attitude and right conduct.

Methods of Instruction.

A carefully graded course of instruction adapted to the age, interests and abilities of pupils is followed daily by the grade teacher who is instructed by a physical education teacher making visits at regular intervals. This special teacher presents a new lesson to the class, carefully observed by the classroom teacher. The course includes group games in which all can join, recreational plays for the classroom and playground, athletics, folk dances, gymnastic exercises of large muscle groups, stunts and corrective exercises. Whenever the weather permits, exercises are taken out of doors.

At the beginning of each year the special teacher examines all pupils above the second grade in posture, giving a standardized test which calls for good posture while sitting, standing, exercising and walking. The pupil is told his fault and special exercises given for correcting the same. This test is given each month thereafter by the grade teacher and a record posted on the blackboard.

At the end of the year's work, an all-round physical efficiency test is conducted in all upper grades for both girls and boys. The first test made in one year consists in coming up to a certain athletic standard which all should attain, and for which a certificate is given. This test is not competitive and not strenuous. A second higher test given the following year includes a health test of a rating of good in posture, health habits, physical exercises and not more than 10 per cent under average weight. For this the boy receives a silver button and the girl an enamel pin.

Time.

In all grades the average daily time allotted is 18 minutes. In the first and second grades additional time is given for play in the afternoon.

Results.

1. An increase in the percentage of pupils passing the posture test in each classroom.

2. An increase in the number of pupils passing the athletic and physical efficiency tests.

3. An increase in the number of teachers rated excellent in this work.

4. Grade teachers report that they invariably see a marked difference in out-of-town pupils coming from schools which have not had physical training. This is shown in the carriage of the body, physical alertness, general muscular control and mental attitude.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Of the millions of taxpayers who will file returns for the year 1928, the vast majority are entitled, in addition to the personal exemption of $3,000 for married persons and heads of families, $1,500 for single persons, and a $400 credit for each dependent, to a further credit of 25 per cent of the tax on their earned net income. Correctly to determine this credit, the taxpayer first must compute the amount of tax which would be payable without the earned income credit, and from this amount of tax 25 per cent is to be deducted, the balance being the amount of tax due.

For example: A taxpayer, unmarried and with no dependents, with a net income for 1928 of $5,000, would pay without this reduction a tax of $22.50. His actual tax is $39.37. From his net income of $5,000 he is allowed a personal exemption of $1,500; the tax of 1 1/2 per cent on the remaining $3,500 is $52.50. One-fourth of this amount, or $13.12, may be deducted.

WOMEN LAUD POST SCHOOL OF COOKING

Big Audience at Last Session
Voices Appreciated; Mrs.
Northcross Thanked.

DELICIOUS RECIPES GIVEN

The women at the closing session of The Washington Post Cooking School yesterday afternoon expressed their appreciation of the opportunity given them by the Post for the 10-12 afternoon of intensive study of the culinary art, buying and housekeeping. Many of the women who have attended each session went to the platform at the end of yesterday's session and told Mrs. Frances Northcross how much they have learned from her lectures and demonstrations.

The Cooking School has been a real convention of housewives with the merchants and manufacturers of Washington. Many women who have left the household cooking to others have found pleasure in trying the recipes at home and giving their families "something different" to eat. Women to whom housework has been more or less irksome, have received new inspiration by attendance at the school.

Yesterday many of the merchants were present to answer questions relative to appliances displayed and to explain the time and labor saving features.

The recipes demonstrated yesterday were:
Flour and Fish—Grease the plank, lay split fish on. The backbone should be removed. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dot with shortening. Bake in moderate oven until done—about 15 minutes for a three-pound fish. If necessary to prevent dryness, baste with melted shortening. In a gas range, set the plank under the flame—a type of broiling. This will make six servings.

Fish Sauce—1 tablespoon shortening, 1 small bay leaf, 1 pepper cone, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, juice of one-half lemon, dash of red pepper, salt and pepper to taste.

Place in a broiler after removing steak, allow to boil. Add one teaspoon chopped parsley, one slice onion, pour over steak while fat is melting.

Cucumber Aspic—1½ tablespoons gelatin, 1 pint of chicken stock, 1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, 2 cucumbers, grated juice of one lemon, 1 onion (grated), 1 teaspoon celery seed, 1 bottle imported pearl onions.

Put all ingredients together except cucumbers and onions. Put over boiling water and bring to boiling point. Strain into mold, add when it begins to set, cucumber and pearl onions.

Granted Divorce in Reno

Reno, Nev., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Emma M. Cosman, authoress, was granted a divorce yesterday from her husband, Jack T. Cosman, New York millionaire and associate of leaders in the motion picture industry.

How to Keep Well
By DR. W. A. EVANS

BATTLE OF THE BIG POTATO.
The Northern Pacific Railroad says it began using big baked potatoes as an advertising stunt about eighteen years ago. It was about that time that the potato became a staple of the dining car service, began the campaign.

But about eight years ago the N. P. dining car did not serve big baked potatoes. Mr. Titus was for them, the railroad was for them, and the potato growers of Idaho and Montana were for them. Against them were the Amalgamated Order of Conductors and Cooks. They were backed up by one very practical proposition. A dining car stove was too small to cook enough big baked potatoes to meet the demand. The battle waged, as battles have a way of doing. When the smoke cleared, Mr. Titus was out and big baked potatoes had disappeared from the bill of fare. When tried to get the conductor said, "No, and what's more, never again." And then he explained the role of war correspondent.

Something has happened. Maybe dining car stoves are larger or else big baked potatoes are smaller. At any rate, the Northern Pacific is again baiting the traveling public with big baked potatoes. Let us see what they can do. They should, if they can, arrange matters with the stove.

The baked potato is fine food. It is high in food value and rich in minerals. It forms an alkaline ash which makes it suitable for use with meats. It is not so rich in some vitamins, but it is commonly eaten with foods which make up any deficiency that might exist in that direction. Containing little moisture, it is either baked or broiled, and is more suitable than the latter for those who tend to fatten, and diabetics have a little more liberty with it.

And baking is the best way to cook a potato. In baking none of the minerals are leached out and the peeling is made easy and edible. Let us intersect a word in favor of eating some, if not all of the potato peel.

Another advantage in baked potatoes is that there is a greater chance to escape grease and condiments. The best way to eat a baked potato is without salt, pepper, or any butter. Most people can be persuaded not to use pepper. Potato contains enough mineral to take the use of any condiment, it will be digested easily if it is free from fat.

BABY STANDS AT 6 MONTHS.
Mrs. G. M. P. writes: I have a baby girl 6½ months old who crawls, sits up alone and now stands up at the side of her crib. I have either about 3 years old now, who did the same things. She could walk around a chair at 6½ months. The baby's legs are straight and so are the older girl's. The neighbors think it is terrible that she is standing so young. I don't think I can stop her, do you?

REPLY.
You can't stop her, but don't encourage her.

HOUSEWIFE'S KNEE.
R. L. H. writes: I have a friend who has a housewife's knee. Could you tell me a cure for it?

REPLY.
I may slightly bowed legs be straightened other than by operation? Would leg exercises help?

REPLY.
Promoting the knee by strapping it and not using it may give it a chance to get well. The probability is that the knee has medical or surgical cause.
